LABORITES IN COMMONS ARE GROWING BOLD

Filibuster Develops As Result Of Inaction Of Government

MANY UNEMPLOYED

LONDON, Dec. 13 — Laborite members of the house of commons, angered by the unemployment policy of the Donar Law government, began a noisy filibuster which kept the house in session through the night. Adjournment was taken at 6:50 o'clock after Laborites had accused the government of scandalous inaction.

"We will fight in the streets if you do not give us what we want," was the ominous threat of D. Kirkwood, Scotch Laborite, hurled at the occupants of the government benches. "If we do not get what we need constitutionally, we will take it unconstitutionally."

J. T. Newbould attacked Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer: "Just wait until your time comes," shouted Newbould, who is the only Communist member of parliament.

Other Laborites made similar speeches, threatening the government for not taking immediate action to relieve distress arising from the unemployment of 1,300,000 workers.

NEW BOILER FOR THE COUNTY HOME

M. C. Woods has been given the contract for the installation of a new boiler at the County Infirmary, at his bid of $642.50. He was the only bidder.

The job will be done on a force account. A rate of $5 a day is allowed for teams, 25 cents an hour for common labor and $3 a day for the foreman.

BRITAIN MAY NOT BE REPRESENTED AT NEXT PARLEY

New Reparations Plan Will Be Submitted To The French

POINCARÉ STUBBORN

LONDON, Dec. 13—Great Britain may not participate in the next conference of allied premiers in Paris, it was learned from an authoritative source today. The British treasury department is now drawing up a new reparations plan which will be submitted informally to France. If the French reject it, Premier Bonar Law is likely to reply that further conferences are useless and that each nation must go its own way in the future.

Members of the cabinet are understood to be angry over the unbending policy of Premier Poincaré of France, which was responsible for the breakdown of the meeting here on Monday.

Most of the British cabinet were said to believe that the German proposals, while not entirely satisfactory would have been suitable as the basis of further negotiations. In order not to risk the collapse of the allied united front, Premier Bonar Law finally consented to the Belgians' and Italians' proposal to put off further negotiations to a future date.

However, it is reported reliably in government circles that Bonar Law is convinced that further negotiations will be fruitless unless the French modify their demand for seizure of the Ruhr and Rhineland industrial belt.

WILLIAMS' BODY IDENTIFIED, BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL

Funeral services for Charles Williams, 49, of Newark, son of Mrs. Nancy McNabb, 118 north Second-st., who was found dead in Newark Sunday evening, will be held at the mother's home Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

The body was definitely identified Tuesday afternoon, and brought to the mother's home.

According to relatives, Williams had been watering a horse, and was leading it thru an alley to the barn when he dropped dead. Attendants at the barn notified the police and coroner of his death, and the police were asked to locate his relatives.

The coroner found that his death had been caused by heart trouble. Believing that he had relatives in Coshocton, the local police were notified, and it was finally learned that Mrs. McNabb had a son by the name of Charles Williams.

Williams was born in Coshocton April 2, 1873. Fourteen years ago he left Coshocton and went to Newark, where he was employed first as a moulder in the Wehrle machine shop, and later at the livery barn where he died.

He is survived by his mother and one sister, Mrs. Frank Shoman, 101 west Walnut-st. Arrangements for the place of burial had not been completed Wednesday.

Motor cycles were necessary to catch him.

NEW DWELLING WILL PROBABLY BE BUILT FOR THE PHILABAUMS

A new house on the site of the one that burned last Sunday and left the Charles Philabaum family destitute will probably be erected in the spring by Robert Kestler, of Coshocton, owner of the property, a half mile from Oak Grove school-house on Fresno Route 2. Mr. Kestler had not definitely decided to build, Wednesday, but indicated that in case he puts up a new house, which he declared he would probably have to do, the Philabaum family would be permitted to occupy it.

Neighbors and friends of the Philabaum family were continuing their efforts toward the collection of relief funds and goods Wednesday. They reported continued success. Beds, blankets, furniture, food, clothing and money donations continue to pour in. Three papers were in circulation in Coshocton for funds.

William Harbott, a neighbor of the Philabaum family had collected $62 and a large amount of goods. Lewis McFarland, of Coshocton had collected $31 Wednesday. There are two papers in circulation in Coshocton. Mrs. W. S. Merrill, 844 Main-st. has received donations of four beds and a considerable amount of clothing besides the cash donations. Lewis Gephart, of Coshocton was circulating a paper Wednesday for the same cause, but it was not learned how much he had secured.

Mayor Tish suspended $50 of the fine on promise of good behavior. Selders sold lemon extract to Pete Zerze, according to the police.

Frau Von Rochow, Victim Of Ex-Kaiser's Pride Reveals "Ladies' Man" Side Of Character, Hitherto Concealed, As She Crumples His Post- Nuptial Missive

Copyright, 1922, by I. N. S. (Revelations of the former German kaiser as a "ladies' man" and lover—a side of his character that was hitherto hid in the outside world—are made today in an exclusive interview with Frau Gabriele Von Rochow, to whom the ex-royal was secretly engaged for six months.

This engagement, as exclusively told by the I. N. S. yesterday, was broken off by the former kaiser as the result of opposition from members of his entourage. In the following exclusive story Frau Von Rochow tells of letters from Wilhelm even after his marriage to Princess Hermine of Reuss. (Editor.)

By S. D. WEYER. Copyright, 1922, by I. N. S. BERLIN, Dec. 13 — "Nothing is more terrible than to see your life's idol and your ideal in life shattered at your feet."

Frau Gabriele Von Rochow, "the other woman" in the love triangle in which the former kaiser is the central figure, fixed a pair of steel blue eyes upon the correspondent in brave effort to stem the flood of tears that were welling up.

"Life to me," she said, "now seems like one great yawning emptiness. Can you imagine an altar that is without its deity?"

In her hand, Frau Gabriele held a four-page letter written in staccato, awkward German script, strangely contrasting with the signature, which was none other than "Wilhelm," written with the usual flourish that used to impress officials. (Continued on Page Five)

SELMA LENHART IN 'ERSTWHILE SUSAN' PLEASES AUDIENCE

Reader Portrays Parts Accurately In Story Of Pennsylvania Dutch CHURCH IS FILLED

Portraying each character so vividly that her audience was able to picture it as in reality, Miss Selma Lenhart, dramatic reader, scored a decided hit in the rendition of Marjorie DeForest's story of the Pennsylvania Dutch, "Erstwhile Susan," at Grace M. E. church Tuesday night.

The main floor of the church was filled to capacity and the balcony comfortably filled. Her humor kept the audience amused during the course of the performance, which was one hour and forty-five minutes.

Before presenting the play, Miss Lenhart gave a brief synopsis of the story she was about to act out. In the story Miss Lenhart displayed her ability as a dialect artist. She related in three acts the efforts of Juliet Miller (Erstwhile Susan) to bring sunshine into the life of her unhappy little step-daughter, Barnabette. The thread and incidents of the story are amusing and pathetic. The reader introduces seven speaking parts in the production. Those portrayed by Miss Lenhart were: Barnabette, twice made a widow by the death of his wives. He was a Pennsylvania Dutchman who was selfish. (Continued on Page Five)

CLEMENCEAU OPPOSES RUHR OCCUPATION BY FRANCE IN FAREWELL MESSAGE TODAY

Aged Tiger's Popularity Is Attested By Enthusiastic Throng At Pier To Bid Him God Speed On His Return To Paris Today—Wilson Sends His Bon Voyage

MERCURY SETTLES TO TEN ABOVE IN CITY; 2 IN COUNTY

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 13—Georges Clemenceau, the "Tiger" of France, symbolized the "Dove of Peace" when he sailed for home just before noon today on the liner Paris.

He declared against further occupation of Germany by French troops, saying that "no real Frenchman wants to annex a foot of German territory."

Wrapped in a fur-collared great coat, with his now famous soft felt hat pulled down over his ears, the former French premier waved an affectionate farewell to the land that he said he should never see again.

Whether or not M. Clemenceau was successful in his patriotic efforts to draw France and America closer together in international friendship, there was no doubt about his own personal popularity, as a vast throng of Americans and French residents crammed the French line pier, cheering and shouting farewells, and waving hats and handkerchiefs.

Women, overcome by emotion, sobbed.

"Three weeks of continuous travel and speechmaking had left little mark of fatigue upon the 80-year old statesman. His eye was bright, his step alert and his voice vigorous."

Tremendous importance was attached to an exclusive statement on French policy made by Clemenceau to the correspondent just before he sailed.

The former—still a power in France—said:

"I do not want to see the French army go into the Ruhr. I fear the consequences of such a move. I am afraid of the effect of such occupation upon the German democracy, already bearing a heavy burden, and having a hard struggle with the junkers. No real Frenchman wants to annex a foot of German territory."

Clemenceau's dictum is just the opposite to the present policy of Premier Poincaré who is insisting upon military occupation of the German Ruhr.

M. Clemenceau received the following telegram of farewell from former President Woodrow Wilson:

"Allow me to bid you an affectionate farewell and to congratulate you on the admiration you have won from our people. All good fortune attend you."

M. Clemenceau sent the following reply:

"I cannot but be most grateful for the kind message you have been so good to send to me. Your feelings are mine. All your efforts for the best, that you did not spare while in our country, are those of the French people and may be summed up in these words—justice and peace to all."

CHARLES KANUCKLE HOME BURNS TODAY WEST OF WARSAW

Fire, supposed to have started in an upstairs room, completely destroyed the residence of Charles Kanuckle, six miles west of Warsaw Wednesday noon.

With the exception of a few legal papers, deeds to the property and insurance papers, nothing was saved, according to a report from there Wednesday afternoon.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Kanuckle. She and the children were alone in the house when the fire started. Mrs. Kanuckle is said to have heard a noise, and going to the stair door to investigate, discovered the whole top of the house to be in flames.

Assistance was immediately summoned from nearby farms, but the fire had gained such headway that efforts to extinguish it were futile.

The house is said to have been fully covered by insurance.

The Kanuckle family was taken to the home of Mr. Kanuckle's father, William Kanuckle, where they will probably stay until other arrangements for shelter can be made, it was said by neighbors Wednesday.

SHEEP CLAIMS OF $2,660 ALLOWED BY CO. COMMISSIONERS

More than fifty claims for damage done to sheep by dogs were allowed last week by the county commissioners. The total amount of the claims was $2,660.

The county auditors' records show that 264 sheep were lost during the year and 17 dogs killed by dogs. All claims were paid in full from the dog and kennel fund.

Several years ago the claims were paid under a plan. When a dog was killed, the claimant was to pay the cost of the dog and kennel fund. In 1921 claims amounting to $2,340 were paid, and in 1920 claims for $4,185 were made, but only partially paid, because of lack of money.

BIG SHIPMENTS OF CHRISTMAS TREES COME FROM MICH.

Christmas without a Christmas tree would be about as enjoyable as the Fourth of July without fireworks, but dealers here are well supplied and say they have enough to supply the demand.

Several hundred Christmas trees arrived in Coshocton Wednesday. A boatload of trees arrived from Michigan. The trees are in healthy condition and nice shape.

Christmas trees were retailing from 50 cents to $2 in this city Wednesday. These prices are about the same as last year's. The trees range in height from 1 foot to 10 feet. The taller the tree, the higher the price.

George S. Brushwood announced Wednesday that he received 50 per cent more trees this year than last year.

BRITONS WOULD STANDARDIZE ACCENTS

Professor Of Phonetics Believes It Is Only Form Of Real Democratization

COMMON SPEECH SOUGHT

Suggests Teaching Single Sounds To All Residents Of Great Britain

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A plea is going abroad for a standardized English pronunciation. In this country a man is judged by his accent. There is no surer test of caste than accent, and all the democrats here who object to the caste system believe that the only true remedy for the inequality of all classes is to do away with its most distinguishing sign—the accent.

There never has been a pronunciation common to all England except the private college pronunciation, and that is common to all those wealthy enough to attend the private school.

According to Professor Jones, who is head of the department of phonetics at the London University there is no accent so uniform as the private college accent.

"It is the only pronunciation common to all parts of the country. It is even used by the Scotch aristocracy, yet the Glasgow man talks about the accent of his aristocratic countryman as an English dialect."

"Australian English is different again, while American English is unlike any English spoken in Great Britain. Moreover, a London elementary schoolboy might not be able to understand another elementary schoolboy from Edinburgh or Newcastle-on-Tyne, each speaks the local dialect with the local intonation."

Professor Jones believes that a common accent can be taught throughout the country by means of phonetics, which is simply the science of the formation of speech sounds. Any accent can be acquired by diligent study of a Covent Garden porter—who speaks the most representative and fruitless of rookery—could be made to mimic his words, trill his "r's," asphate and intonate like a young lordling from Oxford university.

But Heaven help him if he tried it unspectacularly on his colleagues! Imagine Alf Perkins, with his newly acquired Oxford accent, sailing gently into the avenues of cinders' barrows in Covent Garden and meeting his friend, "Atty Awkins, struggling with his burrow of fruit. Says 'Atty to Alf. 'Wotcher, me old Alf. Aintcha gonna lend a blinkin' ryal an w.v. 'is bleedin' barrer?"

In response, Alf intonates exquisitely.

"Certainly, dear old thing with the greatest possible pleasure—charmed to I am sure 'Lahor ipse volupia."

Should such an incident occur there could only be one ending. It would be a good scrap while it lasted. George Bernard Shaw says it is possible anyone speaking with an Oxford accent might possibly get knocked down in a minute village. That would certainly happen to Alf Perkins if he tried it in Covent Garden, where the democratic code is adhered to most strictly.

Yet Professor Jones is hopeful. He believes that English people in all parts of the Empire and all English-speaking people outside would be brought closer together if there were a common standard of pronunciation.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

By DAVID M. CHURCH
LONDON, Dec. 13.—English women are failures at business, at least that is what statistics would seem to show.

An increase in the number of women who have failed in business is shown by the bankruptcy statistics which have just been published for the year 1921. In 1921 there were three women who failed for every woman who failed in 1920. Out of 3,472 receiving orders issued, 325 were against women traders, of whom 52 were in the drapery and haberdashery trade and 47 in millinery and dressmaking.

Marriage and thoughts of marriage are the cause, according to Miss Elspeth Phelps, Court dresser.

"So many women fail to learn their business properly," Miss Phelps says. "They do not train themselves adequately. They will not put their hearts into the work; they shirk the duty that a man accepts."

"The reason for this is a fundamental one. They are all thinking more about marriage than about business. They may be in business to earn their living, but too often they regard their activities merely as a stepping stone; they have not made up their minds to stick to business."

London newspapers are written with a fine air of delicacy. Listen to this paragraph written in one of the many "gossip" columns: "At the end of the year the arrangements of her Majesty are subject to alteration in order to permit the Queen to make a short visit to Princess Mary at Goldborough Hall, or in the event of that place not being ready at Harewood, Yorkshire, for about that time an event is expected in the Royal family which will be of great personal interest to their Majesties and also to the nation generally."

The Prince of Wales is in line for promotion. Within a short time it is expected that the Prince will be made both a Rear-Admiral in the Navy and a Major-General in the Army. It is probable that the Prince will host his Rear-Admiral's flag some time next Spring and will make a short cruise in command of one of the squadrons of the Atlantic Fleet.

The new House of Commons more nearly fulfills the name of "Commons" than any previous House. The new Parliament is full of common men, men who are not mere statesmen, men who do not hold their position by reason of royal title, but men who have won their way into Parliament as the representatives of the common people. In the present House there is a coal miner, a railway locomotive engineer, a carter, a barman and a newsagent. There are more trade union officials in the House than any other class. The House has in its membership 83 trade union officials, 80 lawyers, 24 Army officers, 8 Navy officers, 22 directors of companies, 14 journalists and authors, 17 ship owners, 11 manufacturers, 10 engineers, 3 land owners, 3 farmers, 3 school masters and 8 brewers and distillers.

LABOR'S CHARGES AGAINST ATTORNEY GENERAL AIRED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Labor will be given an opportunity to air its grievances against Attorney General Daugherty in an impeachment proceeding before the House Judiciary committee, the committee decided this afternoon.

Persistent effort by Jack Rains, counsel for Representative Keller, Republican of Minnesota, who brought the impeachment charges against Daugherty and for the American Federation of Labor forced the committee to abandon old forms of procedure and to take up at once the various allegations made by organized labor.

Honolulu Sheriff To Teach Young Officers How To Use Pistols

HONOLULU, Dec. 13.—Sheriff Rose, of Honolulu, is a firm believer in preparedness, especially since he returned from the recent annual convention of police chiefs in San Francisco.

The sheriff is not anticipating any influx of train, taxicab or stagecoach bandits into Honolulu, but he is impressed with the necessity of teaching the young police how to shoot, just "in case."

Annual practice meets for the display of shooting talent are being held all over the mainland, argues Sheriff Rose, and why not in Honolulu? Hereafter the Honolulu guardians of the law will be taught that a revolver has other uses than tilling up a hip pocket.

Moreover, personal taste in fancy revolvers of the pearl-handle and baby Colt variety will be curtailed, and a standardization of police firearms to be carried by the Honolulu police will be made.

The first practice shooting will begin soon.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Men should do the cooking, scrubbing and nursing, among other jobs—and women should do nursing, doctoring, preaching, and other work connected with the church.

This, according to Dr. Sloan Chesser, famous London woman doctor, is the ideal distribution of work.

At a meeting of the Women's Freedom League in London the fair doctor conjured up a picturesque vision of men toiling among the cooking utensils and scrubbing brushes while women concentrated on infant welfare.

For thousands of years, she said, women had done the hard work of the world. The old argument that women were too weak to do certain kinds of work had never been applied to such tasks as carrying buckets about the house and scrubbing the floors.

She advanced three reasons for reversing things and making men cook and clean. Because men are physically stronger than women. Because cooking is of tremendous importance for the welfare of the family—and would, therefore, be better undertaken by men—long known as the "more competent" sex. Because experience shows that where men do this work they do it better than women.

There is one aspect of housework, however, from which Dr. Chesser would exempt husbands—the cooking, scrubbing and nursing.

"Men fail as nurses because the duty of nursing is inspired by the mother spirit in women," she said. "Men have not that instinct, and that is the reason why they are no good as nurses."

But Dr. Chesser admits that no sharp line of demarcation could be drawn between men's and women's work.

"Men excel in creative work," she said. "That is only because women's creative energy goes to the fulfillment of the motherhood function."

WOULD YOU TRADE GOOD EYES FOR WEAK ONES?

WEDNESDAY Health

Talk No. 136.

By R. E. Lynch, D.C., Ph.C.

—Would you trade good eyes for weak ones? Of course not. The eyes are too precious. Yet many are trading good eyes for weak ones without being conscious of the transaction. Once strong eyes you suddenly realize have become weak. Before you turn to glasses, as the only means of relief, it is well to see what chiropractic can do.

—The record of chiropractic spinal adjustments in cases of abnormal or defective eyesight—even blindness—is such as to make the investigator pause. The history of chiropractic shows case after case of blindness restored to sight, particularly where the loss of sight was not due to destruction of the organs of vision. But fortunately, not many are actually blind, though scores suffer from eye headaches without realizing the quick and permanent correction that chiropractic affords.

VISITS FAIR to Celebrate Return of Eyesight.

—"My eyesight has been restored, so I'm going to celebrate by going to the Coshocton Fair," said William Dunfee of Treadal, to a Tribune reporter today. Mr. Dunfee has been blind for eleven years. While leaning over to uproot some weeds he suffered a severe pain which seemed to center in his eyes. "I began with Chiropractic Spinal adjustments for weeks ago with Dr. Lynch and now I can see as good as ever," declared Mr. Dunfee—Coshocton Tribune, October 4, 1922.

LABOR PARTY IN ENGLAND NOT MADE UP OF TOILERS, BUT PROGRESSIVE ELEMENT

LONDON, Dec. 13.—"Watch Labor!" This is the word that is being passed by British political observers, for the impression is prevalent that staid old Britain is on the verge of government by a Labor Party.

Of course a Labor government is not an immediate probability, for things move slowly in England, but it certainly is agreed that the present trend of politics is in favor of the Labor Party. There are many who are willing to wager that there will be a Labor government within the next three years.

The election of a Conservative government, under the leadership of Bonar Law, is probably the best thing that has ever happened for the Labor Party. There are already very patent signs that the Bonar Law party is going to be reactionary, but like America, England is done with things reactionary. It will take time, but the resentment against reactionary things will pile up and pile up, and the next election will probably see a victory for the Labor Party—at least that is the opinion of such persons as Lady Astor, Sir Hall Caine, H. G. Wells and scores of other progressive thinkers.

The Labor Party cannot be regarded any longer as strictly a labor party—it is traveling under a misnomer. The so-called Labor Party is really England's Progressive Party; in its ranks are the most progressive thinkers in England, and hony-handed sons of toil are in the minority.

Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Party, has never been a manual laborer. He was a school teacher in his early days and later became a private secretary. His career in public life during the last few years has been one of statesmanship.

Arthur Henderson was once a working engineer, but he was also an intellectual laborer, for on Sundays he was a local preacher.

J. R. Clynes has been a manual laborer, but far in the distant past; for many years he has been a figure in public life and an organizer of labor.

H. G. Wells, author and historian is a driving power in the Labor Party movement.

Margaret Bondfield, leader of the women of the Labor Party movement, is an economist and organizer.

Hamilton Fyfe and George Lans-bury, two of the best-known editors of London, are high in the Labor Party councils.

It is persons of this type who are making the present Labor Party of Great Britain. The toilers are in the minority, at least those who toil with their hands, and ministers, clerks, economists, politicians, editors, students and all sorts and manner of men and women are joining the movement for a real progressive political party. Nobility even is flocking to the Labor standards. Lord Haldane is an ardent laborite, and Arthur Ponsonby, who was page of honor to King Edward, is also among the leaders.

The tide against reaction is steadily mounting and its finding expression thru the Labor Party. "Watch Labor!"

The Immutability Constitution

PRESIDENT HARDING is discovering that he is the lonely leader of a minority in his opposition to changing the date of the meeting of congress. His position is singularly indefensible.

At the November election a congress was chosen that is much less favorable to the administration than is the hold-over body. Legislation is necessary, and yet it is being entrusted to men elected two years ago and already rejected by the country. The new representatives and senators will not be assembled, except by a special call from the President, until Dec. 1, 1923. President Harding thinks they should be allowed to cool off from the heat of election.

Whatever the President's motives, his act is singularly unwise. The constitution lays down the rule that "the congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, UNLESS THEY SHALL BY LAW APPOINT A DIFFERENT DAY." The men who framed the constitution fixed upon the first Monday in December because it seemed most convenient to the farmers of 1787. It is absurd to assume a haphazard choice made a hundred and thirty-five years ago by men who lived under very different conditions ought to affect in any way the decision made by this generation.

The "Fathers" certainly were not at all convinced that early December was the most suitable season for convening congress. Their own doubt was reflected in the clause "unless they shall by law appoint a different day." This is a characteristic touch. The men who organized the United States had no such belief in the divine inspiration of their efforts as is now sometimes suggested by those conservatives who hold the constitution to be immutable.

The constitution was recommended to the states on Sept. 17, 1787. Within eleven months a sufficient number of states had ratified it to give it force. Seven of the ratifying conventions proposed 124 amendments. In the first session of congress James Madison introduced a list of twenty amendments. Twelve of these were approved by congress and ten were ratified by the states. There are only nineteen amendments to the constitution, but it is a significant fact that the first ten were in force by Nov. 3, 1791, and that within the next few years two more amendments had been added.

The greatest element of stability which any government can seek is to be found in the assurance that the legally expressed will of a majority of the electors will be duly reflected in the law. The delay of thirteen months between the election and the first meeting of a congress delays and often frustrates the making of laws favored by the majority. This practice is contrary to the spirit of American institutions and it should be ended. The President will do well to withdraw his opposition to so obvious a reform.

The President's Anti-Strike Recommendation

THE big feature of President Harding's message is a guarded recommendation of legislation to prohibit strikes on the railroads. "The public must be spared even the threat of discontinued service," reads one sentence. He would have representation on the Railroad Labor Board by the railroad unions and the railroads abolished and would have decisions "made by an impartial tribunal." Another paragraph reads:

Public interest demands that ample power shall be conferred upon the labor tribunal, whether it is the present board or the suggested substitute, to require its rulings to be accepted by both parties to a disputed question.

Just how "impartial" a new tribunal would be when made up of Harding appointees may be gathered from his nomination of Pierce Butler for the supreme bench. But aside from this aspect of the recommendation there is the fact that a government tribunal forcing workers to accept its decisions would be to provide for involuntary servitude. It means conscription for private corporations. Extend the principle to all industries and the government becomes a private policeman for the owners of industry.

There is only one way of enforcing such decisions and that is by military power. Disguise the proposal as its advocates may, that is what it means. It means soldiers quartered at every important division point of the railways when the workers decline to accept a decision. The bayonet then becomes not an arbiter in the dispute, but an instrument of force to drive workers to their tasks. If the proposal is enacted into law that would be reason for enacting the same legislation for other industries that are engaged in interstate business. Industrial servitude enforced by military power is the goal of this proposal.

On the other hand, there is no suggestion that the owners of the great industries of the United States should be compelled to continue operation should they close their plants for any reason. The Harding idea is sweet and tender in its view of the great corporate organizations that own the industries of the United States. Harding's point of view is the view of the industrial masters, which he would translate into Federal military power.

Should this proposal be received seriously in Congress, it will be a test of every man whose vote is recorded on it. In the meantime the organized workers of the country must watch this sinister measure should it rear its head in Congress and mobilize their forces for its utter defeat.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Auction antique sales bloom in every block. The craze for collecting has swept New York like wildfire. No home is complete unless cluttered with ancient wares. Bachelors who used to press against the bar rail at leisurely moments now pour the midday wine.

"Philopateia has supplanted the dry martini," is the motto of the day. I yield the palm of antiquity to no man. Yet it seems to me that the thing is being overdone. I know a man of heavy affairs who is neglecting work to flush out of dusty auction shops a pair of Ballois mirrors.

When he gets them and he does do so, he is not alone. And he has a wife and a home. Period. Turn, turn, turn, is the motto of the day. The chief charm of collecting, of course, is acquiring knowledge of the romance of antiquity. It is an absorbing study, taking one back to the days of dukes, grandees and feudal kings. Men who all their lives thought of "period" as things like these: . . . can now discuss the various cycles of time with an erudite flair.

One of the finest homes on Park Avenue has been taken over by an antique dealer. He used to be an automobile salesman. He has grown as rich as a bootlegger in about two years. Society has opened its doors to him. It's a mad world. Slightly cuckoo.

Broadway hideaways have their "Who's Who?" The wine opens are indexed and at opportune moments the list is turned over to the black market and vended who please along the white way. When one shows a prediction for cheery blondes and Riverside apartments he is a smiling mark to be decoyed into a game behind arm-ored doors. Broadway appears to be a different avenue, handsome but where money is in sight it uses its wits. Bootleggers also want the names of the spenders so they can phone them about their latest poison.

The burlesque houses are giving nightingales—which begin at midnight. And burlesque is coming into high favor among the night prowlers. The comedian who slaps the lady on her bare back is again returning to his own.

On the seventeenth floor of No. 71 Broadway the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation hold their meetings. At such a time there is a hair-trigger expectancy. The pick of the Wall Street reporters are in the hallway waiting for news to flash around the world—news that may send the money markets staggering. Recently the portentous door of the director's room opened. A mighty magnate stepped out. Everyone was on tip toe. "Say boys," said he, "What's the name of that long lanky comedian at the Globe?" Evidently directors discuss other things besides steel.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

SHIP TRUST FIRST—THEN THE FARMER

Editor The Tribune:

Farmers by the thousands in the middle west and in the trans-Mississippi region are in debt and distress, in bankruptcy and poverty, and with no prospect of an improvement in their condition unless the prices of agricultural products rise at least to the cost of production or the government offers them the poor consolation of taking mortgages on their lands for the loans that are needed to tide them through another season of seeding and harvest.

Such is the plight of the most vital industry of the country. Only some fortune or some prompt and powerful assistance from the government—not by way of gifts, but through advances of funds on the basis of real security—can rescue these farmers from the wretchedness which they are now enduring.

LONDON JUSTICE GIVES 3 WOMEN DEATH PENALTY

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Justice Shearman, sitting in Old Bailey court today sentenced two women to death for murder. They made three women whom Justice Shearman had sentenced to death on the same charge in 24 hours, the third being Mrs. Edith Thompson who instigated the murder of her husband.

The women doomed today were Mary Jones and Daisy Wright. The wholesale sentencing of women to death in the same court aroused a tremendous sensation throughout London.

Evening newspapers in commenting upon it, pressed to see a revolutionary movement on the part of the judiciary to recognize the demand of feminists for equal treatment for men and women under all circumstances.

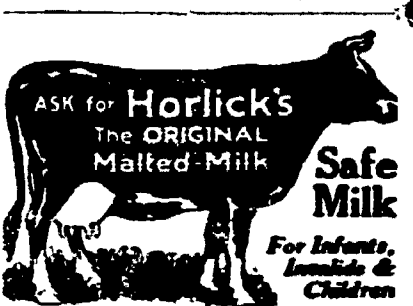

Ordinarily women murderers are sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor. Mrs. Thompson, who was sentenced yesterday to be hanged was the first woman to receive a capital sentence in more than 15 years.

See that old, worn out range in there, that the Women Folks have to cook 1095 meals on every year!

Besides being Spunky and Stubborn and Aggravating, that old, worn out range eats up the fuel just as tho it didn't cost anything. It's a wasteful, knuckle-skining monstrosity and it should be replaced.

How happy you can make HER this Christmas with a new MOORE'S Range in her kitchen. She certainly deserves it. If the men had to do the cooking they'd have thrown it away a long time ago.

So let's make this Her happiest Christmas. Surprise Her with a Beautiful New MOORE'S Range—a Range that's easy to clean—that is good to look at—that cooks as good as it looks—and that will soon save enough food and fuel to pay for itself.

and was in favor of everything that benefited nobody but himself. He possessed anything else but a gentle disposition. The reader interested the patrons with the rendition of Barnabee until he expired in the second act, when he fell from a church roof, on which he was working. Others in the cast were Barnabette, a girl of 17 years at the time of the introduction of show and an important character; Abel, an unfortunate suitor, who did not meet the approval of Barnabette; Jacob, aged 23, and a son of Barnabee and his first wife; Judge Jordan, an attorney and close friend to Juliet Miller; Attorney Pounce, of Kinelarts village, who would have read Barnabee's will had Barnabee not torn it up before he died, and Julien Miller, better known as "Erstwhile Susan," who thru a matrimonial bureau became the third and last wife of Barnabee. She proved to be a splendid step-mother to Barnabette, and sent her to college and educated her. Prior to her marriage to Barnabee, she was a lecturer, an elocutionist and an actress.

The name of the book is "Barnabette" and the author is Helen R. Martin. Martin DeForest dramatized the story and changed the name from "Barnabette" to "Erstwhile Susan."

The critics who have heard Miss Lenhart, the Lyceum monologist, have ventured the strong assertion that she excels her contemporaries in the matter of differentiating her characters. She has the dignity necessary for the heaviest parts and at the same time is competent in simulating lighter roles.

This is said to be Miss Lenhart's fourteenth year doing dramatic work of the type which was heard last night.

Mrs. Howard Miller announced last evening that the next number on the Redpatch lecture course will be the Harp Ensemble Company. It comes to the M. E. church on New Year's eve.

Suddenly her hand tightened its grip and the letter crumpled up in her fist, as she exclaimed: "Why does he write to me? Why does he send me these effusions extolling the beauty and capabilities of his new wife instead of just saying one single word which would put a stop to the campaign of slander against me? Here he writes to me that 'Hermine is wonderful, that she is just the kind of wife for him.' Then he tells me about George Vierock (an American journalist) having visited him at Doorn and to watch for the article that Vierock will publish about him.

"But there is not a single word saying he is sorry for the way I was treated. And to think that I have been his intimate friend since 1884 and for six months was secretly engaged to marry him. It is dreadful. And then I have been called his 'housekeeper' in stories obviously inspired from the house of Doorn to serve as an alibi for Princess Hermine."

Frau Von Rochow looked at the letter and continued:

"Here on his separate half page he has written a dedication to me which he asks me to paste in a copy of his memoirs he had ordered his publishers to send to me."

Frau Von Rochow tossed a picture of the former kaiser upon a table, asking the interviewer to read the inscription on it. Wilhelm had written: "To his dear Margraefin from Margraef."

These were not names by which the couple had known each other for nearly four decades.

Frau Gabriele said they had been chums since Wilhelm was 26 and she 18. The word "Margraef" is an allusion to the feudal past when the forbears of the Hohenzollerns and Rochohs were bitter enemies attacking each other in their castles in what was then called Mark Brandenburg.

"That was the nucleus of the Prussian kingdom."

SIGNS ON ROOFS GUIDE AIRPLANES

Selma, Alabama, Introduces Aid To Fliers To Help Them Get Location

SELMA, Ala., Dec. 12.—With the word "Selma" painted in huge, brilliant letters upon the tops of buildings, this town claims to have taken the lead in erecting aerial signposts for aviators seeking to determine locations of landings.

Airmen have frequently stated that where they are compelled to fly low in order to verify locations it is dangerous, not only to themselves, but to civilians, as the slightest derangement of a plane when flying at a low altitude might result in a fatal crash.

To obviate this danger for fliers from the Montgomery air depot intermediate station coming to Selma the name of the city gleams brightly from the top and sides of the Federal building here—the tallest in town—making it possible for aviators, flying at a safe height, to check up on location.

A suggestion that this practice be adopted by other cities has been made to the Secretary of the Navy.

MAYORS OF OHIO DISCUSS STATE AID FOR CITIES

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12.—Mayors and city managers of practically every city and municipality in the state are meeting here today, at the call of City Manager Bingham, of Lima, president of the Ohio League of Municipalities to discuss Lima's present financial crisis and the proposal that the state legislature enact relief measures for cities in financial distress.

Lima's crisis is attributed to the defeat of the two mill tax levy at the recent general election.

Lima, it is claimed, is without adequate funds for municipal government expenses.

The conference reconvened at 10 o'clock this morning with the permanent roll still incomplete, but with a report providing for the seating of delegates from local labor unions in St. Louis, Chicago and other cities awaiting action.

It was that possible C. E. Ruthenberg, representing the "Workers" party, a communistic organization, would again demand a seat in the convention but without success.

Reports from committee on progress, organization and finance also were ready for action.

ALLEGED OFFENDERS MAY BE TWICE TRIED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Two cases considered by the government of major importance in the enforcement of national prohibition were decided by the supreme court Monday. In one of them, coming from the state of Washington, the government secured a sweeping victory, the supreme court holding that both the federal and a state government can prosecute and punish the same unlawful act in the manufacture, possession, transportation or sale of intoxicating liquors.

The other case, coming from California, the government lost in its contention that in the enforcement of national prohibition an executive officer can impose and collect as taxes, the assessments and penalties imposed by those sections of the revised statute which remain unrepelled by the Volstead act and which became law while the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors was not prohibited.

The United States district court for western Washington dismissed a federal indictment charging Vito Lanzo, Dick Barto and others with manufacturing, transporting and possessing intoxicating liquors on the ground that they had been tried and convicted in the state courts for the same offense. In reversing this action today the supreme court held that "in the absence of special provision by congress, conviction and punishment in a state court under the state law for making, transporting and selling intoxicating liquors, is not a bar to a prosecution in a court of the United States under the federal law for the same acts."

Referring to the contention by the defendants that they could not be placed in double jeopardy, the court explained that the meaning of the term double jeopardy as used in the fifth amendment to the constitution referred to "a second prosecution under the authority of the federal government after a first trial for the same offense" under the same authority. An act denounced as a crime by both national and state legislatures, the court said, is an offense against the peace and dignity of both and may be punished by each.

If such a construction did not apply, the court stated, it would be easy to imagine the rush of offenders to state courts to plead guilty, if by so doing they could obtain immunity from federal prosecution on the same act.

The Reo, Drug Corporation of San Francisco, obtained a permit to withdraw from bonded warehouses unexcused liquor and was to be under the prohibition act for such use.

The permit was cancelled, and a collection of internal revenues imposed upon the company, in addition to those provided in the prohibition enforcement act, certain taxes and penalties earned by unexcused portions of the revised statutes governing the manufacture and sale of distilled spirits and wine prior to national prohibition.

The supreme court in an opinion by Justice McKenna, explained that the court had held in the case of Ex parte Ladd, collector, district of Columbia, that a collector of internal revenues could not punish a collector of internal revenues without hearing, information, indictment or trial by jury.

The imposition of a tax, the court said, is a penalty for the support of the government and the fine of a penalty is a penalty for the support of the government.

POINCARÉ BLAMED FOR COLLAPSE OF PREMIERS' PARLEY

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Daily Chronicle, personal organ of Premier Poincaré, declared today on the collapse of the allied premiers' conference that Premier Poincaré's French militarism is threatening Europe.

Premier Poincaré, Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and Premier Theunis, of Belgium, have departed to report to their respective cabinets the French premier being the only one taking anything like victory with him. While Poincaré did not succeed in having the allies adopt his program for seizure of the German Rhineland industries and the Ruhr coal fields, he was successful in preventing their complete rejection. They will be put forward again when the premiers reassemble in Paris January 2.

It was a significant coincidence that the British government should announce its intention of building two new dreadnaughts permitted under the terms of the Washington conference just as the conference was tottering into collapse.

British newspapers for the most part took a gloomy view of the situation, holding that Poincaré was chiefly responsible for the breakdown of the parley by insisting upon his drastic invasion policy.

Hope was expressed, however, that private negotiations between Poincaré and January 2 will enable the allies to get together in Paris on common grounds which assure an agreement acceptable to Germany.

Altho he failed to get his reparations plan adopted, Premier Mussolini was in a buoyant mood when he departed. He said he would go to Paris in January with new plans.

A report came from Paris that the Poincaré government may be compelled to resign unless the French premier is able to persuade the British and Italians to accept the French military measures proposed against Germany.
